Dear Parents/ Carers

Thank you for supporting your children's reading at home. Regular home reading is crucial to ensure your children become confident readers who read for pleasure.

Over the next couple of weeks you will notice that children have new reading targets placed inside the back cover of their home-school diaries.

These targets are to help you and anyone else who reads with your child. They give really useful tips as to how to get the best out of shared reading opportunities. They also suggest things you should try to avoid doing.

The targets are appropriate to your child's current reading ability. They can also be applied to other books your child might read.

If you have any queries please ask the class teacher or come and chat to me. We are more than happy to help.

Please also chase us if in a couple of weeks you notice your child does not appear to have targets in their diary. If diaries come to school daily, they should not slip through the net.

Many thanks.

Kind regards,

Julie Chantrey
